Introduction

National Music Lovers was conceived by Harry Scherman and Maxwell Sackheim during the economic downturn of 1921–1922. With sales of full-priced records slumping, several inexpensive new labels had recently come onto the market and were selling well. Scherman and Sackheim decided to launch their own cheap label, but with a twist: The records would be sold only by mail-order, in sets of eight, shipped C.O.D. with ten-day return privileges. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office published National Music Lovers’ label-design registration on May 7, 1923, by which time the records had been on the market for several months.

Scherman and Sackheim were already experienced with producing and marketing low-cost merchandise. In 1914 they had launched the Little Leather Library, comprising cheaply produced sets of books that were sold by Woolworth’s and other cut-rate retailers. Scherman would go on to launch the Book-of-the-Month Club in 1926.

The team rented an office for their new record venture at 218 W. 40th Street (New York). The actual production was contracted to other companies, and the records were mailed to customers directly from the pressing plants. They were widely advertised in major newspapers and popular magazines beginning in October 1922. At $2.98 for a set of eight records, exclusive of shipping, they were the cheapest standard-size discs sold at the time. However, the arrival of the 25¢ Oriole and Radiex labels, and subsequent price cuts to popular budget brands like Banner and Cameo, soon deprived NML of that distinction.

Scherman and Sackheim had to produce and distribute their records very cheaply to realize any profit. They initially employed two competing independent pressing plants — the Bridgeport Die and Machine Company (Bridgeport, Connecticut), and the Scranton Button Company (Scranton, Pennsylvania). Both were full-service record-production and distribution facilities, and were affiliated with record companies and independent studios from which they could license masters for their clients’ use.

BD&M at the time was licensing the New York Recording Laboratories’ Paramount masters, which it pressed under the East Coast version of NYRL’s Puritan label, along with a group of client labels that included Broadway and Triangle. They also appear to have been the conduit through which recordings from the defunct Olympic label (some of whose masters ended up in the hands of NYRL through its connection to Harry Pace’s and John Fletcher’s Black Swan–Olympic operation) found their way onto NML.

Scranton, the largest independent American pressing plant at the time, had recently acquired the assets of Emerson’s record division, including its masters. In addition, it was about to take over production of the Plaza Music Company–Regal Record Company group of labels, masters for which were being supplied by the Independent Recording Laboratory. IRL also made some of the last recordings for the Arto Company, so probably the source of the handful of Arto masters that appear on NML.

Many eight-record sets were offered over the years, including Operatic Songs (purple label), Old-Time Songs (black label), Band and Concert (blue label), Hymns and Sacred Songs (dark green label), Irish Songs (light green label), Novelty (orange label), and numerous versions of the Popular Song & Dance and Latest Song & Dance Hits (red label) series. The Old-Time, Operatic, and Hymns series (comprising sets A through D) were the first to be offered and were also the longest-lived, still being advertised as late as 1926. They are among the most commonly encountered NML issues today.

Most NML issues used artist pseudonyms, aside from a few early releases in the Old-Time Songs and Novelty series and a group of mid-1920s sides properly credited to Fred Hall’s Roseland Orchestra. Songs were occasionally retitled, as well. When NML was unable to come up with enough suitable material for its two so-called Charleston Sets, it took a cue from Grey Gull (which was known to retitle songs with abandon) and assigned new “Charleston” titles to several existing compositions. Nearly all NML issues duplicated material on their suppliers’ regular releases, but some used alternate takes, and some early recordings show numbers in LL-100 and LL-200 series that appear to have been exclusive to NML.

Alternate versions exist of many NML discs prior to the mid-1920s, in some cases because NML switched master suppliers while a number was still in production. In other cases, popular issues were renumbered, and given recoupled, for inclusion in new series. The most puzzling are a group of alternate versions, in the red-label series, that feature entirely different selections than the original releases. The company also occasionally pressed special split-number couplings, sometimes of which were used in special promotional offers. Rather than assign new catalog numbers to these pressings, NML simply used the labels from the original couplings, so that each side shows a different catalog number.

The BD&M connection was severed in late 1923, after Scranton reportedly purchased a 49% interest in National Music Lovers to ensure its continued business. Scranton’s buy-in resulted in a shift of focus, to current hit tunes, and roughly coincided with the disappearance of the mysterious “LL” markings. The first red-label popular set (Dance Series No. 1, Set E) was advertised in October 1923. The red-label sets generally had a shorter catalog life than the earlier “standard” series, either being discontinued once a more current set was available, or overlapping the new series for a short time.

National Music Lover records released after the Scranton buy-in drew heavily on Plaza Music Company–Regal Record Company masters, duplicating material on Banner, Regal, and related labels. Masters that Scranton obtained from Emerson, Federal, the New York Recording Laboratories, Pathé, and even the defunct Arto company were used occasionally on NML during this period.

NML’s main secondary master source was Emerson, particularly after Scranton acquired the company in October 1924. The original Emerson Phonograph Company had undergone several changes in ownership and management. At the time Scranton purchased its record business, it was operating as the Emerson Recording Laboratories, which was also supplying masters to Grey Gull. A year later, the company would morph into the Consolidated Recording Laboratories, under the ownership of several former Emerson executives. (For the sake of simplicity, I refer to all of these permutations as simply “Emerson” in the discography). Scranton continued to handle Emerson’s pressing, funneling Emerson masters to NML with increasing frequency as the 1920s progressed.

Electrical recordings began to appear among the autumn 1926 releases. By then, the market was saturated with 25¢ and three-for-a-dollar records, and NML began to lose its appeal. Harry Scherman left the operation in 1926 to devote his full attention to his new and potentially far more lucrative Book-of-the-Month Club venture. Sackheim joined him as an advisor in 1927, at which point NML’s days were numbered.

The first hint of a change came in October 1927, when National Music Lovers began offering two free records with the purchase of an inexpensive after-market reproducer named the New Phonic. New records continued to be released, but advertising for them dwindled, then virtually disappeared. In late 1927, Scranton temporarily bowed out of the NML business. Production briefly shifted to the Cameo Record Corporation, which produced what would be the final records to bear National Music Lovers labels (numbers 1211–1218), using current material from its own catalog.

National Music Lovers, Inc., suspended operations at the end of 1927. In its place came the New Phonic label, which commenced its catalog at number 1219, picking up precisely where NML had left off. The records were credited to Carl Henry, Inc., a shadowy entity that appears to have been little more than a trade name for whomever was actually responsible for the New Phonic reproducers and phonographs. No evidence has been found to connect either Scherman or Sackheim with the New Phonic venture.
Cameo produced the first New Phonic issues, again using its own masters along with several Pathé recordings that were assigned false Cameo master numbers. In the early spring of 1928, however, production reverted to Scranton. Most of the remaining New Phonic releases used Plaza masters, once again duplicating material on Banner, Regal, and related labels. The pressings usually show Plaza’s control numbers, rather than the actual matrix numbers.

Exactly how (or even if) New Phonic records were sold remains a mystery. Thus far, no advertising has been found for the records, suggesting that they might have been used in promotional schemes, rather than being sold outright. Beginning in 1928, Carl Henry and many other dealers advertised "free" records, of an unspecified make, with the purchase of a New Phonic phonograph or reproducer.

The last New Phonic records were released in November or December 1928, using masters recorded in August and September of that year. New Phonic records were still being pressed as late as the spring of 1929 (one release shows a reassigned American Record Corporation control number dating to April of that year), but after that, nothing more was heard of the label.

A 1953 CBS inventory confirms that all of NML’s Opera Series masters were still stored in Columbia Records’ vault in Bridgeport, Connecticut, to which they had been transferred from the Scranton pressing plant many years earlier. However, a recent inquiry to Sony Music confirms that they no longer exist.
Using the Discography

The discography is arranged by National Music Lovers / New Phonic catalog numbers. Data are displayed on five or six lines, followed by endnotes if needed. A typical entry is as follows:

1255  Ten Little Miles from Town (Kahn - Schoebel)
Ernie Golden & his Orchestra  (as Manhattan Musicians)
Vcl: Harold (Scrappy) Lambert  (a.e.)
Mx: 8109 - 1 [ctl. 1702]  (Mx. Source: Plaza)
Original Issue: Banner 7188 (Ernie Golden’s Dance Orchestra)
Recorded: Aug 1, 1928

   Lambert was identified by aural evidence; the vocalist is pseudonymous on all corresponding issues.

In this example, Line 1 shows the catalog number, with multiple versions indicated in brackets [v1, v2, etc.], when applicable. The catalog number is followed by the title in correct form, as published and/or copyrighted, with any significant deviations in label copy noted. Composer, show, and film credits (which don’t appear on these labels) follow. Version numbers have been assigned in what is believed to have been the order of release, based upon circumstantial evidence, but should be considered arbitrary unless otherwise noted.

Lines 2 shows the actual performer, followed by the pseudonym used on the NML or New Phonic label. Where all corresponding issues were also pseudonymous, the methods or evidence employed to establish actual identity are explained in the entry footnotes. Many orchestra identification in The American Dance Band Discography and derivative works like American Dance Bands on Records and Film are anecdotal or speculative (although rarely disclosed as such in these works), and have been disregarded here, but are mentioned in the footnotes; see further comments under "About Artist Identification," at the end of this section.

Line 3 shows other personnel, when applicable, including accompanists and band vocalists. These performers are rarely shown on the NML or New Phonic labels, even in pseudonymous form. Those listed in the discography have been identified primarily from corresponding non-pseudonymous issues or, in the case of certain unmistakable vocalists, based upon aural evidence.

Line 4 shows master details, beginning with the true master ("Mx.") number and the take number used on NML (other labels often use different takes, which are beyond the scope of this work). These are followed in brackets by associated false master numbers, if a master from an outside source was renumbered by the company supplying NML, as often occurred in exchanges between Plaza and Pathé, or Pathé and Cameo; or by “control” numbers assigned by the master supplier. Most of the late Plaza-derived issues show only that company’s control numbers, which were assigned in order of release and thus have no mathematical correlation to the true master numbers.

Line 5 shows the label and catalog number of the original form of issue — that is, the first known release on the producer’s main label. In most cases, there are corresponding releases on many other labels, which are beyond the scope of this work. This is followed by the pseudonym employed on the original issue, if applicable; and the date of that issue’s release.
(taken from the Talking Machine World advance lists, original advertising, or monthly catalog supplements). The release date of the original issue nearly always precedes the NML or New Phonic release date, often by many months or even years. However, there are occasional exceptions in the mid-1920 popular sets where the NML release was advertised concurrently with, or even slightly in advance of, the official release date on the suppliers’ main labels.

Line 6 shows the recording date. Recording files have not survived for most of these masters. Those recording dates have been estimated, based upon a variety of factors, and are clearly indicated “c.” (circa) in the discography. Where an exact recording date is shown, it has been taken from surviving documentation, primarily Chmura’s reconstructed Plaza ledger and the logbooks of band manager Ed Kirkeby.

Entry footnotes include mentions of unsubstantiated band identifications found in earlier discographies, along with the reasons they are being questioned or rejected.

Series Configurations and Special Issues

Under the original NML model, records were sold in predetermined sets of eight discs, and that model was adhered to consistently until 1927, aside from some special stand-alone releases that were used for promotional purposes. The contents of some series, like the operatic and sacred sets, remained virtually unchanged over the years, although different recordings of the same titles were sometimes substituted as suppliers changed. However, the contents of the popular "song and dance" sets could be quite fluid. In comparing advertised listings for a given set in various publications, numerous discrepancies appear. NML apparently was willing to tailor the base sets to suit differing clientele, substituting records from other series, and even producing entirely different versions under the same catalog number. In addition, many popular titles were reissued under new catalog numbers, placing them in different series from those in which they originally appeared.

The eight-record model finally broke down during 1927, as will be seen in the discography. The last advertisement known to list an eight-record set appeared in September 1927, but it was an odd assortment that included one selection from the previous series, along with several titles for which no catalog numbers have yet been discovered. From that period onward, no NML or New Phonic advertising has been found that lists titles or suggests that the records were still being sold in sets.

Special split-number pressings exist that combine material from different releases — for example, coupling one side from NML 1038 with one side from NML 1047. No advertising for such pressings has been found. The fact that all examples inspected thus far are correctly labeled, and that multiple copies are known to exist in some cases, suggests that they were produced intentionally, perhaps as custom orders, rather than simply being pressing errors.

Alternate Versions

Alternate versions fall into two basic categories — those that employ a different recording of the same title, and those that employ entirely different titles. The former tend to occur in the early years, when NML was obtaining masters from numerous sources, including such recently defunct operations as Arto and Olympic. Much of this earlier material was replaced as NML came increasingly to rely on Emerson and the Plaza group as their primary master supplier. The purpose of the different-title alternates remains unknown. Many do not appear in any known advertisements, but all that are listed in the discography have been confirmed from first-hand inspection, either personally or by reliable contributors.
The Mysterious "LL" Numbers

Many early NML pressings show an "LL" marking in the wax, the meaning of which remains to be discovered. It often precedes numbers in the low 100s and 200s, which are believed to have been control numbers. The Record Research team began investigating the LL 100 and LL 200 series numbers in the 1950s, and would continue to do so for several decades, using a synchronized dual transcription turntable to compare them to suspected source recordings, with mixed results. Some did indeed prove to be simply control numbers, substituted for the suppliers' actual master numbers. In many other cases, however, no convincing evidence has yet been found that the recording appeared on other labels. Apparently these were recordings made expressly for NML, although by whom remains uncertain.

Where aural comparison was possible, the RR group determined that the LL "take" numbers are false. In all tested instances, the identical take was used, regardless of the what "take" number appears in the wax. Further investigation is needed to determine if this is the case with all LL "takes." Pending that, I have not listed them in the discography.

The "LL" marking continued to appear on many red-label pressings as late as Series F (October 1923), no longer in conjunction with the earlier 100- and 200-series numbers, but now preceding the true master numbers. Beginning with Series G (January 1924), they no longer appear on inspected red-label pressings.

About Artist Identifications

Readers will note that many dance orchestra are listed as unknown in the discography, although they seemingly have already been identified in works like The American Dance Band Discography and American Dance Bands on Records and Film. Unfortunately, those works are often houses-of-cards when it comes to the identification of pseudonymous orchestras on minor label labels, too often relying on anecdote and outright speculation (which is often not disclosed as such by the compilers), while presenting no supporting primary-source documentary evidence.

It is worth noting that as far back as the early 1960s, members of the original Record Research group (which including such respected investigators as Walter C. Allen, Len Kunstadt, and Carl Kendziora) were questioning the quality of Rust's research methods and his unsubstantiated band identifications in their intramural memos, which are now a part of the Mainspring Press archive. They eschewed such slipshod methods in their own research, and as a result, their work has provided a stable foundation upon which the current discography is built.

The original recording files for Cameo, Emerson, Pathé, and New York Recording Laboratories, and other master suppliers to NML have long-since vanished, and thus could not be the source of the identifications given by Rust, et al., in their discographies.

One seemingly reliable source on which Rust relied was CBS archivist Helene Chmura's modern reconstruction of the Plaza ledger, which was cobbled together from surviving master-transmittal and label-copy sheets and other file fragments, data from test pressings, and, as a last resort, input from a few private collectors. Unfortunately, despite Chmura’s laudable effort, the reconstruction has shortcomings, a major one being that the Plaza paperwork and test pressings she used often showed pseudonyms rather than the actual artist names. In addition, Plaza had a practice of crediting recordings licensed from outside sources simply to "House Band," regardless of the actual artist, and of listing "recording dates" for outside masters that were more likely the date on which the master was transferred to Plaza. Rust incorporated much of that misinformation unchecked in ADBD, and more recently it has been perpetuated by the compilers of ADBRF, who too often seem content to simply parrot his questionable data verbatim.

Consequently, I have disregarded all questionable orchestra identification found in those works and elsewhere. Orchestra names are given only where I have been able to confirm them by reliable means — primarily, by comparison to a corresponding, non-pseudonymous issue on another label; in those rare cases in which original file documentation still exists, such as band manager Ed Kirkeby’s session and payroll books; or in those even rarer cases where an actual, non-pseudonymous artist credit appears on an NML label.

Given the generic-sounding performances and arrangements heard on many NML dance records, I do not consider "aural evidence" to be a reliable indicator of a band’s true identity, with an occasional exception made for the most distinctive groups. However, aural evidence has been used to identify some distinctive vocalists, such as Irving Kaufman and Arthur Fields, whose voices cannot be mistaken for others. In the case of aural identification, the notation "a.e." follows the artists' name.

For Further Research

I do not pretend that the current discography is the final word on National Music Lovers and New Phonic. New data continue to arrive even as I prepare this edition for posting, and the discography will be updated online as needed.

There are still gaps to be filled and mysteries to be investigated — most notably, the LL 100 and LL 200 recordings that remain untraced to other sources (not to mention determining what "LL" stands for); the great likelihood that additional alternate versions and split-number couplings exist (several that have been reported anecdotally are not included here for lack of supporting evidence); and identification of the still-untraced releases, particularly in the anomalous 1196–1203 and 1212–1218 blocks.

Additions and corrections can be e-mailed to publisher@mainspringpress.com., or sent to Mainspring Press at the address shown on the copyright page. Submissions should be based on your first-hand inspection of the original discs (please, no second-hand information from old discographies, auction lists, etc.), preferably accompanied by a label scan or photograph for verification. All who contribute verifiable new data will be acknowledged in future revisions.

Operatic Song Series (D)
(Purple Label)

First Advertised: November 1923

These records were still available in the mid-1920s, and they are frequently encountered today. Although the Record Research group made significant progress in uncovering the source issues for this series, by making synchronized aural comparisons to suspected matches, they were unable to trace the source of several sides, which might have been exclusive to NML.

1024
Rigoletto: La donna e mobile (Verdi)
Stanislaw Berini (as Mario Brefelli)
Acc: Orchestra (probably Arthur Bergh, conductor)
Mx: 4511 - 1, -2 [ctl. LL 201] (Mx. Source: Emerson)
Original Issue: Emerson 2033-X (Stanislao Berini) (Rel: Jan 1920)
Recorded: c. Nov 1919

Corresponding Banner and Regal issues are mislabeled as Max Bloch, which has given rise to the mistaken notion that Berini was a pseudonym for Bloch. Berini in fact was a well-known Polish tenor who performed briefly at the Metropolitan Opera and later worked in the U.S. as a vocal instructor.

Rigoletto: Quartet — Bella figlia dell' amore [in English] (Verdi)
Unknown vocal quartet (as Music Lovers Stellar Quartette)

Original Issue: See note

The single corresponding issue located for inspection is Carnival 11221 (for which a Paramount counterpart has not been discovered), credited to the probably pseudonymous Park City Quartet and showing NML’s control number but not the original master number.

Original Issue: Puritan 11221 (Music Lovers Stellar Sextette)

Unknown tenor (as Hugo Donivetti)
Acc: Orchestra
Mx: — [ctl. LL 202] (Mx. Source: Unknown)
Original Issue: Not located

Several writers have claimed this is Charles Harrison, apparently based upon the similarity to Harrison’s “Hugh Donovan” pseudonym, but the aural evidence is inconclusive.

Dance Series, No. 1 (E)
(Red Label)
("E" designation is not present on some labels)
First Advertised: May 1923

This was a relatively long-lived series, advertised well into 1924, and most releases inexplicably exist in at least two confirmed versions. The alternate couplings do not appear in any known NML advertising, although all have been confirmed from first-hand inspection. "Teddy Bear Blues" and "Three O’Clock in the Morning" also appear in some early advertisements for this series (without catalog numbers), but if they were issued, copies have not yet been located.

The "LL" marking continues to appear in the wax of many pressings in this series, but without the earlier 100- and 200-series control numbers.

Original Issue: Paramount 20125  (Frisco Syncopators)
Recorded: c. Apr 1922

The actual identity of this band is open to question. Frisco Syncopators was a widely used pseudonym confirmed to have covered dozens of different bands.

Parade of the Wooden Soldiers  (Jessel)
Nathan Glantz & his Orchestra  (as Music Lovers Dance Orchestra)
Mx: 1092 - 1, 2  (Mx. Source: NYRL)
Original Issue: Paramount 20143  (Nathan Glantz & his Orchestra)
Recorded: c. Jun 1922

Some Triangle pressings of this mx. show NML catalog number 1032-B and the "LL" mark in the wax, proving a link between NML and the Bridgeport Die & Machine Company (Triangle’s manufacturer, and Paramount’s East Coast affiliate).

1033
Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses  (waltz)  (Openshaw - Cooke)
v1

Recorded: Apr 30, 1923
The recording date is from Ed Kirkeby's log. This version, which appears to be the less common of the two, does not show a master number on inspected copies, but is easily distinguishable from the Plaza version by its Paramount-style spiral run-out.

DANCE SERIES No. 1 (F)
(Red Label)
First advertised October 1923

This was the first series to be issued after the Scranton Button Company reportedly purchased a 49% interest in National Music Lovers in late 1923. Scranton’s increased oversight is clearly evident in the nearly exclusive use of masters from their Plaza Music Company–Regal Record Company affiliates in the next two Dance Series.

"LL" markings continue to appear in the wax on many pressings in this series, but without the earlier 100- and 200-series control numbers.

SONG AND DANCE SERIES
(Red Label)

First advertised March 1924

Some pressings use old Dance Series No. 1 labels. From this point forward, the alphabetical identifiers were eliminated for song-and-dance issues. Based upon NML advertisements beginning in mid-1924, the records were still being sold in sets of eight discs for $2.98, but the contents of those sets sometimes varied in different advertisements. Many reissues from previous NML releases appear among the early offerings in this group.

The following single issue was used in promotional offers in late 1925. It was not assigned to a set, as far as can be determined.

LATEST SONG AND DANCE SERIES
(Red Label)
First advertised January 1926

This was the first of two so-called Charleston Sets and was advertised in The New York Times beginning on February 14, 1926. Some compositions were retitled to bring them into line with the "Charleston" marketing tag. The set included "a complete illustrated Charleston Dance Instruction prepared especially for us by Oscar Duryea, president of the American National Association Masters of Dancing."

1130  Do That Charleston, Dinah  (see note)
Unknown dance orchestra  (as Manhattan Musicians)
  Mx: 3649 - 2  (Mx. Source: Emerson)
  Original Issue: Grey Gull 1287  (Metropolitan Dance Orchestra)
  Recorded: c. Jun 1925

  Attributed to Nathan Glantz's Orchestra in some discographies, with no source cited (original files do not exist, and all corresponding issues are also pseudonymous). This title appears on various corresponding releases as "Dinah (Do That Charleston)," "Do That Charleston, Dinah," or, most deceptively, simply "Dinah" (having nothing to do with the Lewis-Young-Akst hit of the same title). Composer credits on corresponding issues vary by label, including Allen, Gruchen, or Grushen.

I Wish't I Was in Peoria  (Rose-Dixon-Woods)
Jack Stillman’s Dance Orchestra  (as Manhattan Musicians)
  Vcl: Arthur Hall
  Mx: 43007 - 1  [= GG mx. 3768 - 1 = 3788 - 1]  (Mx. Source: Emerson)
  Original Issue: Emerson 3004  (Emerson Dance Orchestra)  (Rel: May 1926)
  Recorded: 1925

  Artist credit is from corresponding Bell 382, inspected copies of which credit Stillman’s Orioles. Originally assigned Grey Gull mx. 3768, which appears on inspected NML pressings. Mx. 3788, which was widely used on the Grey Gull–group labels, is aurally identical.

1131  Brown Eyes, Why Are You Blue?  (Bryan-Meyer)
Nathan Glantz & his Orchestra  (as N.M.L. Dance Orchestra)
  Vcl: Arthur Fields
  Mx: 6178 - 2  (Mx. Source: Plaza)
  Original Issue: Banner 1600  (Majestic Dance Orchestra)  (Rel: Nov 1925)
  Recorded: Sep 10, 1925

  Glantz’s Orchestra is confirmed in Chmura’s reconstructed Plaza ledger, although all issues of the recording are pseudonymous. No mx. or take number visible on inspected pressings; equivalence was determined by aural comparison.

LATEST SONG AND DANCE SERIES
(Red Label)
First advertised March 1926

The second of the "Charleston Sets" and was advertised in the March and April 1926 issues of several magazines, and it was still being offered as late as September 1926. Like the February 1926 set, this one included some retitled compositions and the same "complete illustrated Charleston Dance Instruction" booklet. At least one advertisement for this series substituted 1137, from the previous series, for 1145.

1138  I'm Music Mad [as "Charleston with Me"]  (Potosi)
Fred Hall & his Roseland Orchestra (no pseudonym)
Mx: 3781 - 2  (Mx. Source: Emerson)
Original Issue: Clover 1645  (California Melodie Syncopators)  (Rel: 1926)

All corresponding issues are correctly titled, but Clover and Dandy credit Kannor as the composer.

The Rabbit Hop [as "National Charleston"]  (Trent)
Unknown dance orchestra  (as N.M.L. Dance Orchestra)
Mx: 3590 -   (Mx. Source: Emerson)
Original Issue: Grey Gull 1268  (Pacific Coast Players)  (Rel:)
Recorded:
Attributed to Nathan Glantz's Orchestra in some discographies, with no source cited (original files do not exist, and all corresponding issues are also pseudonymous). All known corresponding issues are correctly titled, but composer credits vary by label, including Hansen or Trent (the latter being the most likely, as Trent was a known major supplier of "dog" titles to Grey Gull).

1139  I Wonder Where My Baby Is Tonight  (Kahn-Donaldson)
Sam Lanin & his Orchestra  (as Manhattan Musicians)
Vcl: Arthur Hall
Mx: 6229 - 1  (Mx. Source: Plaza)

Recorded: Dec 14, 1925 (remake session)
Takes 1–3, by Fletcher Henderson’s Orchestra, are not known to have been issued. Chmura’s reconstructed Plaza ledger does not identify the orchestra employed for the remake session, but aurally, it definitely is not Henderson’s.

Unknown dance orchestra (as N.M.L. Dance Orchestra)
  Mx: 6383 - 3  (Mx. Source: Plaza)

  Attributed to Nathan Glantz’s Orchestra ins some discographies, with no source cited. There is no entry for this mx. in Chmura’s reconstructed Plaza ledger, and all corresponding issues are pseudonymous.

Song of the Vagabonds  (Hooker-Friml; "The Vagabond King")
Lou Gold & his Orchestra  (as N.M.L. Dance Orchestra)
  Vcl: Ernest Hare  (a.e.; see note)

  Original Issue: Banner 1661  (Newport Society Orchestra)  (Rel: Feb 1926)
  Recorded: December 5, 1925 (remake session)
  Inspected copies do not show a take number; equivalence was determined by aural comparison. The original session (takes 1–3, November 17, 1925), used the Newport Society Orchestra with Arthur Fields as vocalist, but Banner et al. continued to use the original labels, without updating the artist credits.

1141  (How I Love Her and She Loves Me Is) Nobody's Business

Plaza house band  (as Master Melody Makers)

Mx: 3763 - 2  (Mx. Source: Emerson)
Original Issue: Grey Gull 1315 (University Dance Orchestra)
Recorded: c. Nov 1925

All corresponding issues are also pseudonymous. One inspected copy shows mx. 3769 in the wax, in error.

1143 I Love My Baby  (My Baby Loves Me)  (Green-Warren)
Sam Lanin & his Orchestra  (as Master Melody Makers)
Vcl: See note
Mx: 6317 - 5  (Mx. Source: Plaza)

Chmura’s reconstructed Plaza ledger does not list a remake session, showing only Nov 1, 1925 (presumably the date of the original session). MISCELLANEOUS RELEASES

Released c. Summer 1927

Thus far, no advertisements have been found for these eight records. The inclusion of a gospel item amongst the pop tunes, and the occurrence of three catalog numbers for which data have yet to be found, suggest that this group was not intended or marketed as a standard eight-disc set.

SPECIAL OFFER

In October 1927, NML offered two special discs free of charge to purchasers of the New Phonic phonograph reproducer. No catalog numbers or performers were given in the advertisements, but the couplings would have differed from those in the standard series, and one title is not known to have appeared elsewhere. Copies of these records have not been located for inspection, so it has not been possible to ascertain couplings.

Crazy Words—Crazy Tune (see NML 1198)
Hallelujah (see NML 1205)
My Baby and Me (no corresponding issue found)
So Blue (see NML 1207)
LATEST SONG & DANCE SERIES
(Red Label)
First advertised September 1927

Some advertisements for this series differ significantly from the confirmed releases listed here, depending upon the publication. Some list NML 1197, from the previous series, while omitting NML 1204 or 1207. Others list the following titles for which no catalog numbers have been found, and which might appear on some of the thus-far untraced issues (catalog numbers were not shown in the listings):

- Dawn of Tomorrow
- Just Like a Butterfly
- Just Once Again
- Why Should I Dream About You
- You Don't Like It—Not Much

Original Issue: Bell 527  (Roseland Dance Orchestra)  (Rel: 1927)
Recorded: c. Aug 1927

The vocal chorus is attributed in error to Chick Endor in some discographies. Endor worked and resided in London from May 1927 through May 1928, besides being under exclusive contract to Brunswick at the time this recording was made.

Lindbergh  (The Eagle of the U.S.A.)  (Sherman-Johnson)
Arthur Fields  (as David Harris)

Recorded: c. Jul 1927

Erroneously reported in some discographies as the 1928 waltz "Together" (Emerson mx. 31250). Identification of Hall is based upon his confirmed presence on adjacent masters, along with aural and circumstantial evidence.

1205 / 1207  This split-number pressing couples Johnny Johnson "Hallelujah" (1205) with Sam Lanin's "So Blue" (1207). No advertisement has been found for this coupling.

1206  Untraced

Original Issue: Bell 566  (Club Folly Orchestra)  (Rel: 1927)
Recorded: c. Aug 1927
   Note: Although Johnson & Shirley's American Dance Bands lists detailed personnel (with no source cited), evidence is lacking that the "Club Folly Orchestra" actually existed. The name is a confirmed pseudonym for the Fred Hall and Lou Gold orchestras on various Bell issues, and might have covered other groups as well.

1211  Untraced
At this point, National Music Lovers switched production to the Cameo Record Corporation. No advertisements have been found for following records, which would not comprise the standard set of eight even should the untraced items ever be discovered. It is possible that these were given away with the purchase of a New Phonic phonograph, rather than being sold outright. NML was already marketing the New Phonic reproducer by mail, and many dealers at that time offered complete New Phonic phonographs with "free" records of an unspecified make.

1212

All corresponding issues are also pseudonymous. NML pressings show only Cameo's renumbered mx. 2637. Corresponding Cameo-group pressings shown both the Pathé and false Cameo mx numbers. No Cameo take letter assigned, as was standard practice with masters they renumbered from other sources.

   (original files do not exist, and all corresponding issues are also pseudonymous). Inspected NML pressings show only Cameo’s false mx. 2640; Cameo-group pressings shows both mx. numbers. No Cameo take letter assigned, as was standard practice with masters they renumbered from other sources.

Moonlit Waters  (Friend-Brown)
Bob Haring & his Orchestra  (as Manhattan Musicians)
Vcl:
   Mx: 2618 - B  (Mx. Source: Cameo)
   Original Issue: Cameo 1242  (Bob Haring & his Orchestra)  (Rel: 1927)
   Recorded: c. Sep 1927

This marks the end of the National Music Lovers label. The catalog-number series continues on the New Phonic label, beginning at #1219.
PART 2: NEW PHONIC

No advertisements have been found for New Phonic records, the catalog numbers of which begin where National Music Lovers left off. It is possible that some of these records were been given away with the purchase of a New Phonic reproducer or phonograph (which many dealers offered with "free" records), or were used in other premium schemes, rather than being sold outright. Cameo continued to manufacture the records until the spring of 1928, when production was once more turned over to the Scranton Button Company and its Plaza–Regal affiliate.

Inexplicably attributed to Lou Gold’s Orchestra in some discographies, although Tom Timothy’s Frivolity Club Orchestra was a well-known New York band (Johnson & Shirley’s American Dance Bands attributes this recording to both bands, in separate and obviously unreconciled entries).

National Music Lovers listed a set of ten seven-inch children’s records for $2.98 in its New York Times holiday advertisement for November 30, 1924. The masters are most likely from the Plaza Music Company’s Playtime series, on which some of the same titles appear. No copies have been located for inspection.
